SOUTHERN VISITORS.

Santa Fe's Board of Trade Inspect Attractions at the Capital.

A Stop of Two Hours to be Made in this City To-Day.

John Murphy's Motion for a New Trial Denied.

Santa Fe Visitors

DENVER, February 18. The Santa Fe visitors spent the day driving over the city in carriages, visiting different places of interest and amusement. This afternoon the Tabor Grand opera house, which is the finest in America, was lighted up and the stage set as for a play by Manager McCourt, for the benefit of the excursionists, all of whom expressed surprise and admiration of the beautiful building In the evening the party visited the fire department and police headquarters to witness the working of the patrol system and firemen. To night they are attending various places of amusement. The party will leave for home to-morrow morning by special train.

The excursionists will reach Colorado Springs about noon to-morrow and stop over two hours to accept the hospitality of the people of that city. The party met at the Windsor parlors at noon to-day and passed a series of resolutions expressing their pleasure, and tendering thanks to S. K. Hooper of Denver and the Rio Grande road and to members of the boards of trade of this city and Pueblo They were highly complimentary and were ordered spread on the minutes of the boards of trade of the three cities and to be furnished to the state. It is anticipated much good to Colorado will result from this visit of the Santa Fe representatives

St. Louis Election Frauds.

ST. LOUIS, February 18.—James Pendergast, alias John Mitchell, alias James Reilly, who was arrested last week in Chicago for alleged complicity in the election frauds in this city last November, has made a statement detailing his connection with the frauds He says that on the day of the election a man unknown to him gave him a ticket to vote with the name of John Mitchell written upon it. The same man was distributing the same kind of tickets among a crowd of voters, all of whom cast their ballots excepting himself, Pendergast and W. B. Christian. The supervisor objected to their votes and they were taken to the city hall by the same man who gave them the ballots to cast. There he procured two certificates of registration and returned with Pendergast and Christian to the polls. There they were arrested; and taken to the government building, but Ed Butler, a prominent local democratic politician, went on their bond and they were released. When he saw just what his position was Pendergast determined to make a full statement of the affair and throw himself on the mercy of the court. Jim Busby, a friend of Ed Butler's, found this out and gave him a dollar to go to East St. Louis He went to East St. Louis and Busby followed him there and gave him a ticket to Chicago and $24 in money. Almost as soon as he arrived in Chicago he was arrested and brought back to this city. Pendergast was before the grand jury yesterday, and it is supposed that it was upon his evidence that several indictments were found.

New York Markets.

NEW YORK, February 18 R. G. Dun & Co. say: Cotton goods are firm with better demand for browns and good deliveries of all qualities on previous orders

Woolens as before are fairly active for women's dress goods, but orders for the better grades of worsteds for overcoatings and heavy suitings are especially backward in spite of low prices.

People who bought in a week more coffee than the country consumers in a month have found it easier to buy than to sell

Wheat speculators, confident of a foreign war, have kindly enabled farmers to sell many million bushels at 10 cents advance and are now dropping their burden.

Railroad earnings are favorable.

The business failures during the last seven days number for the United States 222, for Canada 30; against 207 last week and 255 the corresponding week of last year. Failures in Canada are large and on the increase. In New York city there was but one suspension of consequence In other regions of the country the casualties are about up to the average.

Receiving their Mail

SAN FRANCISCO, February 18 —All delayed trains on the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific routes have arrived here. Mail matter is being distributed as fast as possible. There were on board these trains seven hundred bags of papers and ninety eight pouches of letters. The English mail destined for Australia by the steamer Mariposa, which was detained here six days awaiting its arrival, was handled first and the Mariposa left with it aboard to-day.

Whisky in Leavenworth

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., February 18 Mayor Neely this afternoon issued a proclamation commanding the saloons to close. It is generally conceded that the action of law and order people compelled him to issue the order, seeing that the saloons would be forced to close It is further stated that there is an understanding among the members of the whisky alliance that all saloons will close tomorrow night and remain closed until after the legislature adjourns, with the hope that no further legislation will be enacted bearing on the violation of the law here. This point gained the saloons would again open

Green Convicted

DENVER, February 18—Charles Green (colored), who has been on trial all week before Judge Elliott in the district court, charged with cutting the throat of his employer, Edward Nickens (colored), on the night of January 1st, over a difficulty about a dissolute white woman, was to-day convicted of murder in the first degree.

Murphy's Last Resort

DENVER, February 18 The supreme court to-day overruled the motion of the attorneys of John Murphy for a new trial. Murphy killed his mistress two years ago in a drunken row and was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary. He will be taken to Canon City in a few days

Earthquake in Missouri

ST LOUIS, February 18 A special from Fredericktown, Mo, says: A very heavy shock of earthquake passed through this section of country last night The force was severe enough to overthrow furniture and displace plastering on the walls

Colorado Legislature

SENATE

DENVER, February 18 In the senate to-day the following bills came up for third reading and passed.

S. B. 158, towns and cities

S. B 10, to expedite transaction of business in district courts

Substitute for S. B 9., to compel owners of ditches to cover, was recommended for reference to the committee on printing, and then to the committee on revision

Senate bill 53, "road overseers," was taken up and made special order for next Wednesday at 2 p. m

Senate bill 153, public lands, was taken up and considered The bill went to the committee on revision.

Senate bill 151, artesian wells, was considered and recommended for passage with section 7 intact and retained

Senate bill 184, relating to appointment of game wardens, was discussed and referred to the committee on revision.

Adjourned

HOUSE

In the house to-day various committees reports concerning the progress of bills were made and adopted.

The following bills were read the third time:

S J. M. 1, for the establishment of a grass experimental station in Colorado, was unanimously adopted.

S. J. M. 7, for an economic survey of arid lands of the west, with a view to reclamation of the lands, was unanimously adopted

H. B 109, by Balsinger, providing that no interest on money greater than 10 per cent per annum shall be collectible, which was on the calendar for third reading, was on motion of Mr. Balsinger made a special order for next Tuesday.

H. B. 110, by Balsinger, to amend the charter of the city of Central, passed by a vote of 44 to 2—Messrs. Griswold and Evans voting negatively.

H. B. 171, by which judicial districts and holding courts therein, more particularly the Third district, was read and passed, the vote being unanimous.

Adjourned.

Board of Trade.

There was a fair number of members present at the meeting of the board of trade last evening. The meeting was called to order by the first vice president, Mr. Reuben Berrey, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Mr. A. L. Lawton, from the board of directors, made a statement to the effect that the Santa Fe board of trade would visit this city this morning, and what steps had been taken by the board with reference to their entertainment. He further presented a resolution, which had been adopted by the board of directors at a recent meeting, concerning the question of the secretary's salary. The resolution recited that the board could see no reason why they should alter their original determination, and asked for a recommendation from the board concerning the matter. On motion of W. F. Wilder the action of the board was endorsed by the association. Mr. DeCoursey then rose and insisted that his resignation as secretary be accepted. Dr. Reed moved that the board, while appreciating the valuable services hitherto performed by Mr. DeCoursey in the interests of the association, accept his resignation The motion was carried. On motion of Mr J. H. Barlow Mr. A. Sutton was elected secretary pro tem and the question of electing a successor to Mr. DeCoursey was deferred to the next regular meeting A report was received from the committee on water works and water supply. Accompanying the report was a resolution requesting the city council to have a new main laid into the city from the new reservoir which is now in process of construction The resolution provoked quite a general expression of opinion, and after some explanations by City Engineer Reid, who was present, it was adopted On motion of Dr. Reed the committee on city and county improvements were "cordially invited" to confer with the county commissioners with reference to some improvements being made in the county roads in this vicinity. After leaving the matter of entertaining the Santa Fe board with the directors the association adjourned.

The Texas Investigation

WASHINGTON, February 18 Before the Texas investigating committee to-day Charles Bavir, a German, was examined. He had lived in Burton, Texas, 12 years; moved to Texas from Philadelphia 21 years ago; was one of the republican judges at Burton polling place. Witness was one of the committee appointed at an indignation meeting held at Burton after the hanging of the negroes, to condemn the outrage; the hanging and running men out of the country. It was a meeting of citizens, regardless of politics Probably, however, there was a majority of republicans, but prominent democrats took part. Resolutions were adopted in accordance with the purpose for which the meeting was called. Witness had personal knowledge that Joe Hoffman, tax assessor of the county, and others had received a notice signed "Citizens" to leave the country The receipt of these notices was stated publicly at the meeting, and the fact was not questioned by any one. The riots and irregularities were talked about and no one denied their occurrence. They were alluded to in the preamble of the resolutions, and the document itself declared it to be the purpose of the people of Benton to protect all law-abiding citizens in their persons and property. Copies were sent to the papers. The Brenham Banner refused to publish the resolutions. The Galveston News published them in full. The committee appointed consisted of two or three republicans and three or four democrats. The men were appointed by the committee to guard Mr. Hoffman and his property during the next ten or twelve days. By that time the excitement had died out. Mr. Hoffman had discharged the duties of his office and was doing so to-day.

G. W. Brown (colored), county commissioner, was recalled and identified a paper he found pinned to his saddle. It was as follows

G. W. Brown.

Republicanism is dead, dead in Washington county. You had better resign and leave the county or you will be killed.

The signature was a picture of a cocked gun

C. B. Potter testified that he received the following paper through the mail December 23d:

C B Potter.

SIR.—We have been waiting for some time for you to arrange your business and leave this country. This is to notify you that if you persist in staying many days longer you will be dealt with in a very severe manner.

[Signed] CITIZENS OF W. COUNTY.

Lewis Bryant, a prominent democratic lawyer, told witness that he had helped Hackworth to find a purchaser for his property, and had had hard work in keeping the mob off until the transaction could be completed and the man could get away. Witness left town for eight days because of threats made against him.

W. H. Blount, a colored farmer, was examined. He was a republican candidate for the legislature and was counted out, his opponent having 50 majority. Three ballot boxes were destroyed, one polling place was not opened and at one the republican tickets were thrown out. Witness thought he should have had about 1,000 majority. Witness received the following in the trial

BRENHAM, December 10, 1886.

You are hereby notified to leave the county without further warning

COMMITTEE.

Crauger, a white man, also gave him a verbal notice to the same effect. It was rumored that the colored people had planned an insurrection, of which witness was said to be the head. There was never the slightest foundation for the rumor. William W. Hackworth, son of the memorialist and still a resident of Brenham, was at the indignation meeting when Judge Kirk offered the resolutions giving 24 hours for Hackworth, Moore and Schully to leave the county.

Labor Conflict

PITTSBURG, February 18. A strike at the Junction iron works at Mingo, Ohio, threatens to cause serious trouble between the Knights of Labor and the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers. The strikers are members of both organizations and a conflict of authority has arisen between the members of the two powerful associations The men struck for pay for the time they were compelled to remain in the mill through breakage of the machinery, and the Amalgamated association supported the men in their demand. The Knights of Labor opposed the strike and ordered a resumption of work, while the Amalgamated leaders forbade the men returning until the demands were conceded. Wm H. Bailey of the general executive board of the K of L and President Weihe of the Amalgamated association have had several conferences but there are no indications of a settlement of the trouble. This is regarded as the beginning of a fight in which a danger is threatened identical with that now existing between the Knights and the International Cigar Makers' union, that the men must give up one or the other association. Within the last few months there has been a special effort of both organizations to strengthen their membership among the iron and steel workers. The Amalgamated association have been bringing in new lodges every week and have been especially successful among the steel workers This increase of new membership alone is said to amount to about 4100 men Two new lodges were organized within a couple of days. One is at Terre Haute, Ind., and the other at Benwood, W. Va. It is said that to-day the Amalgamated association is stronger than at any time in its history. The Knights of Labor have been equally diligent in securing mill and steel workers into their order. Special organizers have been getting this class of workmen into the order. This strengthening of membership seems to have embittered the feeling between the two orders The Amalgamated association is still voting on the proposition to join the Knights of Labor in a body, which was made by the latter organization last summer. From all lodges that have been heard from, prominent members say, 700 members have voted to join the Knights of Labor, while over 6000 have voted against it.

Revolt of Laborers

WARE, Mass., February 18—Italian laborers employed on the Central Massachusetts railway struck yesterday against alleged ill treatment by a sub-contractor. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Salvator Pignalosa, leader of the revolt, and the authorities were proceeding to arrest him to day when they were met by the full force of Italians, headed by Pignalosa, marching under the Italian flag armed with clubs, revolvers and guns. The officers endeavored to arrest the leader, when the Italians fired at them. The officers returned the fire, when the Italians scattered in all directions in confusion. Pignalosa was captured and one Italian named Lavora was shot and probably mortally injured. The greatest excitement prevails in town and a number of special constables have been sworn in. It is feared when other Italian camps learn of the shooting of Lavora there will be a general uprising for revenge

Musical Entertainment.

DENVER, February 18 Mme. Zelie Trebelli, and M. Ovide Musin, the well known contralto and violinist, gave a concert in Music hall to-night to a large and appreciative audience. Both are first-class artists and were repeatedly encored. The entertainment will be repeated Sunday evening.

Boarding-House to Palace

St Louis Republican

"This is indeed a peculiar world," said a mining expert at the Planters' house yesterday. "Here I pick up the papers and read of Mrs. Mackay's doings in Paris—how she receives the scions of royalty, how she entertains, how she appears at the opera, how she dresses and how she does a thousand other things; and then I can scarcely conceive that eighteen years ago she kept a boarding house in Virginia City and that I was one of her boarders. Yet, it is true, and I often ponder over it. She was a young widow then, with an interesting child who has since matured into a young lady and was recently married to an Italian prince of some kind. That little girl has often sat on my knee with a little tin can in her hand which contained the contributions of her admirers. In those days we lived principally on canned food, and Mrs. Mackay's back-yard was paved with tin cans. The child had selected a very pretty can which one of the boarders transformed into a little bank. This was partly filled with coin, the result of a tribute which she levied on her friends. She would climb on the boarders' knees, and shaking her little bank, would say 'Is you lucky to-day?' This query had the desired effect, and the bank receipts were increased. Even in her days of distress Mrs. Mackay was a good woman. She personally superintended affairs and made her boarders as comfortable as possible. I was then a superintendent under Fair, and Mackay was already a millionaire. Mining stock was the rage then and I remember often how she would come to me and some of the other boarders and ask our advice about certain stocks, and I am happy to say that the advice I gave her was good, and if I had taken it myself I would now be $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 better off than I am.

"Then Mackay took a shine to the widow, and being reputed one of the wealthiest men in the camp, he found smooth sailing. He couldn't win on his shape nor his beauty, for everybody that has seen Mackay knows that he wouldn't take a prize in a congress of beauty. They were married, and the little girl no longer sat on miners' knees, and 'mamma's' delicate hand no longer placed corned beef and cabbage on miners' plates. They rose faster than Sheridan stock did last summer, the only difference being that their rise was backed by hard coin. The great Comstock lode continued to pour forth its richness and Mackay and his partner became immensely wealthy. Although reared in poor circumstances, Mrs Mackay showed her good sense by securing a private tutor, by whom she was drilled and educated for five years. The little daughter was put through the same course and bid to shine in the most cultured society of the old world Then came the conquests in New York, San Francisco, and finally the trips to Europe. A year ago I was in Paris and one evening attended a performance at the Grand Opera house. It was a first night and prominent in a private box were two ladies, bedecked with diamonds and festooned with flowers. They were the cynosure of all eyes, and, levelling my glasses, I discovered behind the silks, flowers and diamonds the face of my former landlady in Virginia City. The outlines were the same, but time had wrought its changes. The young lady with her was the little girl who used to play on my knee. She had grown out of my recollection."

The senate investigation of Texas election outrages is bringing to light some of the methods employed by Texas democrats in wiping out a majority. They cannot claim originality for them, however. Their efficiency had been thoroughly proved in the south

The Knights of Labor and the Amalgamated association have entered upon a contest which appears likely to result in the defeat of the former organization and further curtailment of its power. Strange to say, its trouble comes from ordering aggrieved members back to work. Failure of its great strikes has shown the danger of the too free use of its most formidable weapon

The London Times had an interesting article recently on ship building in this country and England In 1855 we did most of the ship building. That year the tonnage reached nearly 600,000. England did not reach that figure until 1863 and has gained steadily since. For years the annual tonnage of new ships has been over 1,000,000. In 1885 our tonnage was 159,000, of which a little over 80,000 was iron This is a pretty bad showing. It is due to two causes. Iron ships have taken the place of wooden ships Protection prevents our building iron ships as cheaply as on the Clyde, hence the ships that do the freighting on the sea must come from the Clyde.

The Hon. E. O. Wolcott made a very strong argument before the senate committee on corporations on last Wednesday evening in regard to railroad legislation. He began by calling attention to the facts that the railroads of Colorado represent in actual investment over $100,000,000, that the railroads paid more than 20 per cent of the taxes of the state; that they employ 10,000 men who support 50,000 of our population. Regarding the profits made by these companies he said:

The demand for legislation cannot be based upon the profits which corporations have made. We have 2500 miles of railroad construction in the state of Colorado, and not a single local railroad in the state of Colorado is paying to day 4 per cent upon the actual money which went into its construction. The Denver, Utah and Pacific road, which I have the honor to represent, a little railroad built with Colorado capital from Denver to Longmont, is struggling along and paying its expenses and a little more. The Denver and New Orleans company has been an unfortunate enterprise from the start and has hardly paid its operating expenses. It has, we believe and hope, a career of prosperity opening before it, but to this time it has not and does not now pay its operating expenses The Denver, South Park and Pacific railroad, built by Colorado men with Colorado capital, who placed every bond upon it that now stands against it, except the new line that has been built since they sold it, which represents no watered stock and no watered bonds that Colorado men did not put into it, ran $120,000 short last year of paying its operating expenses, and the Colorado Central railroad, which is held up as a great instrument of oppression in the state of Colorado, fell $12,000 short last year of paying interest upon its bonds

The Denver & Rio Grande railroad, fathered by Colorado men and pressed forward to completion in every canon and mountain pass and mining camp in the state where there was hope of revenue, brought its projectors and its investors to sad grief It is now reorganized upon a basis which does not to day represent the actual dollars that went into the construction of the road It is earning the interest upon its bonds and nearly $ 00,000 in taxes which we pay the state every year. Its stockholders are not getting a penny and before the road could be reorganized every owner of its securities was compelled to put his hand in his pocket and contribute to bring the road up out of the sea of bankruptcy to some sort of solid basis of prosperity Then gentlemen, it certainly is not because these railroads are making enormous profits that you feel called upon to legislate against them It is not because the eastern investors, who have had confidence in the growth of Colorado, and in the integrity of Colorado legislatures, and who have put their money in, are taking great profits out If you feel called upon to put three men to govern this $100 000 000 of capital, whose only requirement must be that they never owned a dollar's worth of railroad stock, and do not know anything about a railroad, it certainly is not for these reasons

Regarding discrimination and rebates, which are the greatest grievances against the railroads, Mr Wolcott said

This legislature can have no such friend to help the passage of an anti-discrimination and an anti-rebate bill, with the severest penalties, as you will find in every railroad company in the state of Colorado The custom is vicious, it is outrageous, it is unjust it is dishonest, and there is not a railroad in Colorado who will not cheerfully and willingly and anxiously second any efforts of this legislature to prohibit and prevent it No railroad gains by it No railroad company desires it. Judge Cooley, one of the most distinguished jurists we have formerly of the supreme court of Michigan, devoted a good deal of his life to the railway question and drew many of the anti discrimination clauses which appear in the legislatures of the country. He has been for the past two months a receiver of the Wabash system and he now reports himself in favor of an anti rebate and anti-discrimination clause in railroad legislation, but has further declared himself to this effect, that any person any shipper, who shall ask, demand or receive from a railroad company any rebate of any discrimination shall himself be subject to the penalties which shall be inflicted upon a railroad company. If you will pass such a bill gentlemen, we will help you to enforce it to the extent of our power

As to the effect of railroad legislation on the prosperity of the state, there were the following forcible observations,

The president of the Denver & Rio Grande informed me the other day that that road is in the market for a large sum of money to build the Rico and other extensions, and he thinks he will get it If railroad legislation comes of the character indicated we never will get it I was informed by the officials of the Midland the other day, which is building its broad gauge system over the mountains of this state, that if this legislation passed, all talk of their extension was waste and useless If Colorado is to be built up and not to be torn down the railroads should be encouraged

Perhaps the strongest part of the argument was that on rates He showed steady reductions had been made without a rate fixing power being given to the commissioner The following on this subject is quoted

Figures are sometimes available I wish to call your attention to a few and I will be very brief I have here a statement of the earnings and the passenger and freight rates of the Denver & Rio Grande company since 1881. These figures show that in 1881 the passenger earnings of the company were $1,503,000, in 1882 $1,559 000 in 1883 $1 ,80,000, (that was the year of our bitter contest with the New Orleans), in 1884 $1,1 000 in 1885 $1,056,000, in 1886 $1 ,0 000 In 1881 we carried 28 000,000 passengers one mile, in 1882, 31,000,000, in 1883, 35,000,000 in 1884, 26,000,000, in 1885, 30 000,000, in 1886 41,000,000 I want to call your attention to the rate per mile, and this was before these bills were introduced In 1881 we received 5 and 36-100 cents per mile in 1882, 5 and 12 100 cents per mile in 1883, 3 and 61 100 cents per mile, in 1884, 4 and 5 100 cents per mile, in 1884, 4 and 16 100 cents per mile In 1886, 3 and 7-100 cents per passenger per mile There is a reduction made, not under pressure of legislation, but because as the towns along the line built up and we had something along the road besides telegraph poles, and employes and their families, as fast as the business warranted it, the rates were decreased If we had continued our rates, as we might legitimately have done, there would have been no bankruptcy for the Denver & Rio Grande company If we had charged in 1886 the same rate we charged in 1881 our earnings would have been increased $1,024,000. The difference in favor of the public in 1886 as against 1881 has been 44 per cent in passenger rates, as against 1883 40 per cent, 1883 15 per cent, 1884 20 per cent, and 1885 20 per cent. In other words there has been a voluntary reduction year for year in the rates charged for the transportation of passengers, and in the last year it amounted to 20 per cent, and a large and sweeping reduction for 1887 has recently been made I submit, gentlemen, that that is about as much as railroad commissioners can do for us. In freight the percentages are still greater, and I won't read them except the summary, and to say that the freight statement giving the tons carried one mile and rate per mile show that the sum total carried in 1886, if carried at the same rate charged in 1881, would have given the company $1,067,000 in excess of what they earned in 1886, being a reduction in favor of the public of 1 and 2 100 cents per ton per mile at 58 per cent. In 1885 if they were carrying at the same rate the earnings would have increased $234,000, a difference in favor of the public of 5 per cent in the last year These figures, I think, show you—they must show any fair man—that the interests of the Denver & Rio Grande company and the other railroads in the state are identical with the welfare and prosperity of Colorado, and not different.

We regret we have not room for the full address It was a candid, able presentation of the railroad side of the question that must appeal to every fair-minded man Undoubtedly there are acts of injustice done by the railroads But when these roads do not earn enough to pay a fair interest on the capital actually invested, (we are not speaking of dividends), it is idle to talk about extortions being general. Both the president of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad and the president of the Midland say that this legislation will prevent the raising of money for extensions which they propose to make this year. We all know the necessity of Rico, Ouray and other places for these extensions We also know the general benefit to the state the spending of money in railroad building has The money spent in the Midland last year was the largest element in the revival of business that extended all over the state If legislation will cripple these efforts to make extensions is there any good that the legislation will do to counterbalance this injury, not simply to the towns that are to be reached, but to the state at large that shares in the benefits of railroad extension We do not think there is Certainly rates cannot be generally reduced unless it is proposed to send the railroads back into bankruptcy again The only evil that really demands legislation is discrimination in rates to firms in the same place and in the same line of business There is a law against this, but it is not strong enough Another should be enacted that will be effective This is the only law that it has been shown is needed The legislature ought not to be influenced by a few badly balanced ill informed people to injure the state and to do injustice to the capital that is invested in the largest industry in our state

Butler of St Louis are believed to be the oldest four military officers in the world Between the last two there is a good deal of rivalry as to precedence Butler went into the army before Harney that is, at West Point But Harney received his commission before Butler got his

Mr Ruskin says that his father's firm was that of Ruskin Telford & Domecq Mr Domecq brought into the business land Mr Telford money and Mr. Ruskin only his good and extremely strong will But my father, says the great critic, though not only a poor man, but worth in the city sense much less than nothing, was always as much the head of the firm as the Caliph Omar was Father of the Faithful

Prof Thorold Rogers in working at the Bodleian library at Oxford Eng has discovered some extremely interesting papers bearing upon early American political history They are dated 1 1 05 and 1 and consist chiefly of what in parliamentary language, would now be called the 'case' against the abortive bill introduced into the commons for altering the constitution He thinks there is enough material to make one of the John Hopkins historical pamphlets

Mrs. Henry Wood, whose death was announced on Thursday, though still a popular author, was personally an unknown figure in London Her novels had ceased to have much currency except among the lower middle classes Perhaps her most remarkable achievement in recent years was editing her magazine, The Argosy, into a financial success but that periodical too, was seldom seen among literary or cultivated people. Of "East Lynne," by which Mrs Wood was best known numerous editions in three volumes were sold at $5 and a one volume edition, at $1 50, one hundred and fifty thousand copies were published

A recent conflagration in a remote Chinese village destroyed the ancestral home of the family of Confucius with all its contents; texts on stones commentaries wondrous carvings in jade and alabaster priceless jars of porcelain jewels and precious metal works in brief, one of the most remarkable literary and artistic museums in the world, containing as it did nearly every extant memorial of the great teacher In that building erected about 600 B C, generation after generation the male heirs of the Chinese philosopher have dwelt in unbroken line for 2,000 years bearing the title of dukes

Electric Belt and Suspensory
For all Personal Weakness of men

We take pleasure in announcing that we have secured the agency of the celebrated Dr Clark Electro Magnetic Belt, patented October 25th, 1885 and which is unquestionably the crowning triumph in Electric science. It embodies such vast and radical improvements over all other belts, that its advantages over them can only be understood by comparing our present railway system to the old overland coach. In short this is THE Electric Belt of today and contains as marked improvements in Electricity for the treatment as today's telephone does over the one of a few years ago. That these statements are facts is conceded by the U. S. Government in their recent patents to us, and arguments are therefore unnecessary. This belt will infuse the current into the spinal column, which is the grand nerve centre of the body and also gives direct currents to the Stomach, Liver, Sexual Organs or any weakened or diseased part, thus penetrating every part of the body and will positively cure Nervous Debility Pains in the Back, Kidney or Limbs Lumbago Rheumatism Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Neuralgia Dyspepsia, all Weakness of the Sexual Organs, Piles, General Ill Health &c Electric Suspensory for men free with every belt

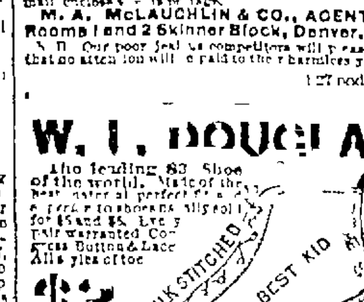

We take it for granted that every buyer of an Electric Belt wants the BEST MADE, and it is therefore to the interest of sufferers to call and see this famous belt before buying as it costs no more than the inferior old style goods, a stronger and more lasting currents, and is indestructible. We warrant it to last for years and whole family can wear same belt. It is lighter and more convenient to wear than any other. TO MEN suffering any personal weakness we especially recommend it, and will be glad to give the highest private references as to what it has done and is doing. Get our Pamphlet No 1 illustrated and containing full information. By mail enclose 4 c in stamps.

RELIGIOUS WORLD

Notes and Comments by Rev J. B. Gregg.

As an offset to the denunciation of written sermons which one often hears we have rarely met anything more clever than the following

A correspondent of the New York Tribune writes.

"I have an enthusiastic admiration for Mr Blaine I regard him as one of the noblest and ablest men of the country and age. There is usually wisdom in his speech, and no man turns a sentence more neatly But sometimes Homer nods—though rarely—Mr. Blaine shows a limitation. This he did the other night in his address before the Boston Congregational club, when he assailed the use of the manuscript in the pulpit. Mr Blaine has made the common mistake of assuming that the model of all speech is a lawyer's address before a jury.

"Now, heaven save that mark! There does not seem to be any great rush among men for the privilege of sitting on a jury to hear the typical eloquence. There is no attraction about the performance except to old jury 'soljers,' who want to keep warm by the county fire. Issue a venire and men say 'Take any shape but that, and my firm nerves shall never tremble'—It is said that the pulpit does not hold the people. Well, does the bar do it? It takes the power of the county behind the average lawyer to get him any hearing at all. If it were optional with a juryman whether he should hear the arguments of attorneys or not, how long would he be likely to linger? The song of the juryman is, 'I would not live alway I ask not to stay.' Then suppose it were optional with the jury, even if they did hear the arguments of attorneys, to bring in a verdict or not, or if they pleased to bring it in when they pleased. A state of affairs would arise out of which a suspicion would soon come to the public mind that the effectiveness of the eloquence of attorneys had been overestimated

'The pulpit is said to be failing to secure the public assent to the standards of faith If after a sermon I could get a tip staff to marshal my congregation off to some infernal limbo about the premises, and confine them there on bread, water, and tobacco till they agreed, I should have one chance out of two that in twenty-four hours I could get unanimous consent even to the damnatory clauses of the Athanasian creed. The lower Court of the 'conviction' that is wrought in court is the work of the sheriff, and not of the attorneys Men have to come to some conclusion, or they can not go home We do not have that attachment to a church.

"As to the merits of the speech in courts, the least said on that score is soonest mended O the droning of it! Often 'the wolf's long howl from Oonalaska's shore' is nothing to it. If you go by a court room door you are quite likely to hear an articulate racket that 'four-and-twenty elders' combined could not make You say, 'Here is richness,' let us go in and hear. When you open the door, you see a dozing judge, a sheriff asleep, 12 jurymen tipped in their chairs to as many points of the compass for relief to their aching bodies, and two attorneys, and no other soul in the room. One of these attorneys is roaring like a bull of Bashan to the aforesaid jurymen A half an hour of his speech is bad enough, but he can keep it up for days if he choose. One reason why the system of trial by jury should be abolished is because it is a nursery of the most abominable style of speaking known among men.

The substantial results thus far reached by the Society for Psychical Research, which was formed in England in the early part of the year 1882, are very shortly to be published in book form, and we shall be better able than we have thus far been to form some angury as to the probable value of its projected work, which has now accomplished its first stage

Its object, in brief, has been to make "an organized and systematic attempt to investigate that large group of debatable phenomena designated by such terms as mesmeric, psychical and spiritualistic."

Not a little coldness has been experienced in the temper with which people who read and think have regarded the undertaking This, however, was to have been expected The whole subject with which the society has set out to deal scientifically has been for ages the favorite encampment of jugglery and imposture. Nor has scientific investigation thus far accomplished anything beyond the detection of trickery, except to yield the suspicion that investigators who discovered wonders inexplicable by the juggler's or trickster's art had been themselves tricked Inheriting all this disadvantage in the stubborn incredulity and apathy of most thinking men, the society has renewed an attempt seemingly as impracticable as the Romans regarded the finding of the source of the Nile, and is about to show what it has thus far achieved

The men associated in this attempt include some of the most prominent in science, literature, and the church The president this year is Professor Balfour Stewart, F. R. S Among Americans who are enrolled as corresponding members are Professors Butler of Columbia, Pickering of Harvard and Stanley Hall of Johns Hopkins. Among the most active members of the council is Henry Sidgwick, professor of moral philosophy in Cambridge, England, whose wife has borne a laborious part in the literary tasks connected with the work of the society.

The society has already issued its "proceedings," at nearly semi-annual periods, to the extent of about a thousand pages These consist mainly of reports of committees on special topics, such as thought-transference, mesmerism, haunted houses, etc., on hypnotism, clairvoyance, apparitions, besides communications of various experiments and experiences, supplemented by critical notes. The society has prosecuted wide inquiries respecting hallucinations and dreams, by circulars so framed as to exclude references to 'coincidences' or 'fulfillments,' and to be answered by a simple yes or no In all this work the society has limited itself thus far to the answering of a single question Is there such a thing as the action of one mind upon another "otherwise than through the recognized sensory channels"? For such action, or rather for the feeling of such action, the word telepathy has been adopted Professor Sidgwick says that the investigations made have fully established the fact of telepathy, that one mind is influenced by another mind at a distance that is, without the usual bridge of communication through the senses. A fatal blow, he thinks, has been dealt to materialistic science by the establishment of such a fact

Whatever mystery be found in this fact it should be observed that physical science has to confront a similar mystery in its discovery that all the forces of nature act at a distance, no atom being strictly in contact with another atom The forthcoming book, "Phantasms of the Living," from the press of Trubner & Co, will give us that fuller information which is desired, and will, it is to be hoped, also procure for the meritorious labors of the Society for Psychical Research a larger and more respectful recognition It should be added that an American society has been formed, in correspondence with the British, under the presidency, we believe, of Professor Simon Newcomb

Young America in a Horse Car

Rochester Herald

A young lady and a small, bright-eyed boy entered a street car on Lake avenue yesterday afternoon. The lady deposited her fare and the boy's and the bell rang.

"Aunt Ella," said the boy, 'what makes the bell ring?"

"The driver rings the bell," was the reply.

"What does he do that for."

"Why, he does it to register the fare"

"Y, but does he do that for"

"Because he has to."

"Oh"

Then there was a silence for half a minute. Presently the boy said

"What is that round thing up there"

"That is the register."

"What is that for?"

"To register the fare"

"You said the ring registered the fare."

"No, I didn't say that."

"Yes, you did, Aunt Ella."

"Now, Johnny, don't you contradict me, you are a naughty boy."

"Well, that's what you said"

A silence of two minutes followed It was broken by the boy, who said: "Say, Aunt Ella, what made you tell me that the ring registered the fare?'

'Oh, I don't know"

"You did say so, didn't you, Aunt Ella?"

"Yes Johnny"

'Then what made you say you didn't say it?'

"I didn't say that I didn't say so. Don't bother me, Johnny

After another brief silence the boy returned to the attack 'Say, Aunt Ella, did you go to Sunday school when you was little?'

"Yes, child, of course I did"

'Did you take any prize-?"

"Yes, lots of them"

'Did you tell wrong stories as much then as you do now?'

"Johnny, you are a bad boy. I shall tell your mother"

"I wish you would tell her two times, that's what I wish."

"Why, Johnny?'

"'Cause you wouldn't tell the same story two times; that would let me out."

Aerial Ships of Warfare

Indianapolis Journal.

Professor Wells is thoroughly American, and the rumors of war following the fish-bait difficulty between this country and Canada have deeply interested him. "If war comes," said the venerable skimmer of the air to a Journal reporter, I am ready to offer my services Aeronautics will hereafter play a more important part in warfare than ever before. I would propose to the government to make the same kind of balloon I made for the French government, making it, however, fully 500 feet in length. Such a balloon would of course be able to carry a great weight. Let me explain how it could be used to protect a harbor like that of New York or Boston. A cable attached to the balloon would be connected with an immense windlass on shore. Prevailing winds on our eastern coast are from the west. The balloon could be let out by the cable just like a kite. It could be sent out five, ten, fifteen, twenty, or even twenty five miles to sea. There would be a telegraph operator on the air-ship and one at the windlass, so that communication could be kept up between them or telephone communication would answer The balloon maneuvred in this way could be brought directly over an enemy's war vessel Balls dropped from the balloon could determine whether directly over the ship or not, and when the exact position was found dynamite in any quantity up to even a ton could be dropped upon the ship. This, of course, would mean annihilation to any vessel so operated upon A harbor with a dynamite balloon poised over its entrance in this way would be safe from all invasion In Chicago I spoke to Gen Phil Sheridan of my method of harbor defense. He was much interested, and invited me to call on him at Washington and give him a full explanation. The balloon could be raised or lowered to any height by compressing the gas. Such balloons could be operated on our Canadian border, and, by means of dynamite, we could destroy any army sent against us. San Francisco could be protected by balloons in the same way, though perhaps there would be more difficulties to overcome on account of the difference in the prevailing wind on the Pacific coast.

"I have invented a war kite, on which I intend to take out a patent. These kites will be operated just as the balloons, by means of a windlass, with an observant or telegrapher on the kite to communicate with the shore. The kite can be made several hundred feet in length, and carry, if required, a ton of dynamite. A kite could be used in windy weather better than a balloon, and it could, also, of course, be used even when there was only a light breeze. There is no doubt about the accuracy with which dynamite could be dropped down upon an invader. The new destructive substance recently experimented with in France could be used just as effectively as dynamite. I would be willing to operate these balloons or kites myself and to teach others to operate them. All these things, in case of threatened war, can be got ready in a month's time Hundreds of them would be needed to defend our coasts, but I have no doubt whatever of the full success that would attend their operation.

Origin of Familiar Phrases

Rochester Express

"Bag and baggage" is doubtless an old proverbial expression in regard to the movement of an army Touchstone says in "As You Like It", "Come, shepherd, let us make an honorable retreat, though not with bag and baggage, yet with scrip and scrippage." The way in which the phrase is used shows that it is a well-known one, and the joke turns on that fact "Dead as a door nail" is an old proverbial comparison which Shakespeare repeated. "Hit or miss" is part of a proverbial phrase "Hit or miss for a cow's tail." "Love is blind" is simply the obvious deduction from the old fable and must be one of the oldest expressions in the language. "Love is blind, but sees afar" is an old Italian proverb. "Selling for a song" sounds like a proverbial phrase, but where the clown in "All's Well That Ends Well" speaks of a man that "sold a goodly manor for a song," the thing looks like a new coinage "Fast and loose" is not of Shakespearian origin The game is from an old juggler's trick known to sharpers at country fairs To play at fast and loose was to play this game, in which a belt with both ends of a string secured securely fastened, the juggler suddenly slipped it away "Westward ho" is probably not a Shakespearean coinage. It was a common phrase in his day and was the title of a drama by Thomas Dekker and John Webster Shakespeare's contemporaries, and "Eastward ho" was the name of the drama by Ben Johnson, Marston and Chapman, which cost the authors a state prosecution. "Familiarity breeds contempt" is an old proverb, the Latin form of it is "Nimia familiaritas contempt upon parit." "Misery makes strange bed fellows" is simply a version of the proverb "Misery acquaints men with strange bedfellows "Birds of a feather flock together" is an old proverb

The Story of a Play

Chicago News

James Barton Kay tells an odd story about the first English production of "Jack," which enjoyed such a prosperous run at the Grand last week It seems that Mrs Harry Beckett, the author, took her inspiration from an old French play, but her work on the piece was entirely original, she having changed the construction entirely and keeping only the motif She originally sold the play ten years ago to Harry Montague and it was played by him in this country under another name He, however, received his San Francisco offer and left to accept it. S Hern fell in love with the piece and was to have produced it had his death not occurred just then. By the terms of the contract it reverted to Mrs Beckett and it was again sold by her to Mr. Plympton. About two months before it was produced in London she was asked by a publisher for whom she works to write a short novel The price was alluring, but she had no theme handy. In despair she took the play and turned it into a novel, putting in only enough description to connect the scenes

"The novel came out before the play did," said Mr. Kay, "and some hack-writer in London perceived its dramatic value and turned it into a play. As luck would have it, our play was produced anonymously and the hack writer was there. He was astonished, and when he saw Mrs Beckett responding to the call for "author," he raised such a row that we were obliged to conduct him behind the scenes to her. He was so enraged that he could hardly speak. He claimed to be the author of the play and threatened her with all sorts of terrible things At last he said: "Why, madam, I can bring you the novel I took it from" "Very well," said Mrs. Beckett, 'bring the novel and play to my house tomorrow' Sure enough he turned up with the documents, whereupon she produced her play with a United States copyright ten years old, together with a novel and a letter from the publisher, testifying that she was the author, and her own play 'This,' she said, holding up her play, 'was what my novel was written from.' He wilted at that, for this is the clinching clause of English copyright law. Notwithstanding all this, however, he sold it to 'Fritz' Emmet for $250"

The Hidden Diamond.

Jewellers' Weekly.

We heard of an odd incident which occurred not many days ago in a store not far from the office of the Weekly. Among its stock was a remarkably fine diamond, worth several thousand dollars, and the jewel was the light of the episode

One rainy afternoon a well known citizen was in the store and one of its owners took out the jewel and gave it to the visitor to admire. To better show off its purity and lustre the gem was placed between the points of a pair of tweezers. The citizen held it up before the window's light, and, after admiring its beauty, moved to return it. His arm struck the corner of a show case and the stone fell from the tweezers. A slight search failed to discover it. Then a thorough one was instituted. No diamond was found.

The clerks, proprietor and citizen looked under cases and rugs, and nervousness began to grip the latter. He was told to go, that the diamond would be found, and not to bother. He wouldn't do it until another and more energetic search had been made, without avail. Then he prepared to depart, after exacting a promise from the jeweler that the telephone should be used when the stone was found. At the door he raised his umbrella—it was raining and from its depths the diamond fell. It had dropped into it from the teeth of the pliers and no one had suspected its singular hiding place.

Senator-Elect Reagan's Brigade

Carp in the Cleveland Leader.

He [Congressman Cox] tells a story coming from Reagan as to how the latter once saved Richmond during its darkest days. The union cavalry had made a very daring raid, and there were no troops at hand to defend the city. Mallory, secretary of the navy, and Reagan, postmaster general, went out to the fortifications to see what could be done. They found Colonel Lines, a confederate senator, in command, and as they came up Lines exclaimed: "Reagan and his brigade to the right—Mallory and his brigade to the left!"

Reagan and Mallory, appreciating the situation, gave out this same command to their supposed soldiers in stentorian tones, which the unionists hearing, concluded there must be a large force and retreated.

Grace Church Free Reading Room,

COR. WEBER ST. AND PLATTE AVE. Open daily, excepting Sunday, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Free to everybody.

Trains were nearly all running on time on both roads yesterday.

Mr. Phil Strubel made a flying trip to Denver yesterday on business.

Mr. John Potter offers some very choice bargains in real estate this morning.

The Electric Light company will increase the extent of their circuit in the spring.

Mr. C. M. Hobbs, purchasing agent of the D. & R. G. railroad, registered at The Antlers yesterday.

The thanks of the GAZETTE force are due to Mr. F. A. Clark for hospitality extended in view of the recent arrival at the Alamo.

We call attention to the advertisement of Professor Clayton in this morning's issue concerning instruction in penmanship.

Mr. E. W. Giddings left for New York yesterday, where he will purchase a large stock of dry goods for the spring and summer trade.

Manager Nye has received some very handsome lithographs of Louis James and Marie Wainwright, who appear at the opera house in April.

Rev. L. R. Norton of the Christian church and Rev. Jas. B. Gregg of the Congregational church will exchange pulpits to-morrow (Sunday) morning.

The Denver & Rio Grande Railroad company will soon open an up-town ticket office in the building occupied by the D. & R. G. express and Bacon & Carr.

The Deaf Mute Index in its issue of the 16th inst. contains the reports of the board of trustees, the superintendent and physician of the Deaf Mute Institute. The reports are well worth reading.

Mr. E. M. Cranston, a member of the legal firm of Charles, Dale & Cranston of Denver, was in the city yesterday and registered at The Antlers. His visit was of a purely business nature. He left for Pueblo last evening.

About fifteen Colorado Springs firemen attended the ball of the W. A. Bell Hose and Hook and Ladder company at Manitou last evening. The affair passed off very pleasantly and all present had an enjoyable time.

The Denver, Texas and Gulf Railroad company have replaced their hoisting plant at the Franceville coal mines, and everything is now in working order. It will be remembered that the plant was destroyed by fire some time ago, which delayed work on the mine for several weeks.

The Santa Fe board of trade will arrive in Colorado Springs this morning at 11 o'clock on their return from Denver to Santa Fe. Carriages will be in waiting for them and they will be driven about the city until 12 o'clock when a lunch will be partaken of after which they will proceed on their journey.

Lotta is the recognized queen of the American stage in her line of acting. The little lady has for a number of years maintained that position and added lustre to the name of actress by her quiet and ladylike behavior under all circumstances. Her business is always the capacity of the house, and it is at great expense and risk that Mr. Nye induced her manager to book one night in our city. She will appear in her most successful play, "Musette," and deserves the large audience that will greet her next Monday evening.

The Antlers Arrivals—J. W. Falconer, Chicago; D. S. Stewart, Granite; E. M. Cranston, Denver; E. K. Alden, J. S. Joseph, Camp; W. A. McKinley, C. M. Hobbs, Denver; D. L. Pickard, wife and son, Mrs. Chas. Hubbard, Syracuse, New York; George Crawford, Granger; J. D. Hamilton, Chicago; J. H. Post, Hartford, Conn.; E. F. Strickland, Boston; S. D. Morris, Toledo; J. H. Wynkoop, Mt. Vernon, O.; J. A. Huston, Toledo, O.; J. E. Clark, Louisville, Ky.

HALLETT & BAKER,
Undertakers and Embalmers.
No. 1 Pike's Peak Avenue.

Fairley Bros. have notice from the manufacturers of the first two car shipment of Furniture to arrive early in February. The basis of costs as per contracts made with the manufacturers for the year, will enable us to make a further reduction in prices, and to very effectually hold our trade over all competitors. Our stock will be very materially increased for the year, and for elegance, greatest variety and lowest prices will not be exceeded west of the Missouri river. Our manufacturing department is growing rapidly in favor. In the manufacturing of specialties to "your idea" during the past year's rush, not a single item has been left on our hands, which fact is a sufficient guarantee of the superior knowledge and taste of our upholsterer. Beyond question he is the finest and most practical upholsterer in the city, having learned his trade to perfection in the old country. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in quality, artistic design and price of every item of upholstering or cabinet work.

Bear in mind that we will, as usual, rule the low prices for the year. Respectfully,

Proposals for Waterworks.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, COLO., February 8, 1887.

The board of trustees of the town of Glenwood Springs, Colorado, will receive proposals for putting in waterworks until seven o'clock p. m. the twenty-first day of February, 1887. The proposals must state the kind of works proposed, where the water will be procured, the price for which water will be furnished to the town and inhabitants thereof, the water system and length of franchise bid for. Bids must state when the works will be completed. The board of trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

It is said must be inside. So the refreshments had to be passed around on the ends of fishing poles. It took 'steen minutes for the procession to pass a given point. The play is too well known from its recent presentation at the Grand by this company to need description. Ned Thorne is a careful and pleasing actor, and he has gathered about him an unusually strong and even company, excellent for melodrama, and the performance is all along with the smoothness and rapid development of the plot that betokens the polishing and perfecting effect of a long run. The scenery has also been repainted and is very fresh and pretty.
